

DeKalb County Community Gardens Sustainable Grower Donation Program Information

DeKalb County Community Gardens, a 501(c)(3) organization, is celebrating its 5th growing season! Since its conception, the organization has sustainably and locally grown over 100,000 pounds of produce in DeKalb County. DCCG has donated to local food pantries, day care centers, schools, community meal locations, senior citizen centers and low-income housing units, as well as to the Meals on Wheels program. In addition to establishing community gardens, DCCG has also launched the Walnut Grove Vocational Farm, which provides horticultural job training for individuals with special needs. These young adults are provided a carefully designed program that teaches best growing practices for food crops as well as ornamental plants.

As DCCG continues to provide more locally grown food and educational programs without state or federal funding, the need for community support has become even more important. By becoming a DCCG Sustainable Grower, you can ensure that DCCG's programs will continue to flourish in the community. As a Sustainable Grower a donation of your choosing will be automatically gifted monthly to DCCG.
